ARMANDO BAUDIN

Born in Cordoba, Argentina, I grew up in the world of theatre, my mother's profession, and developed a taste for the arts. As a teenager I began working with my mother in the theatre, doing everything from performing to sound and lighting and working on community entertainment shows. Following that, I studied journalism, film and photography at the National University of Córdoba. Passionate about media communications, I finally graduated with a degree in creative advertising. My first job was at a radio station in my home town, followed by work in the television industry. Since I arrived in NZ I have been involved in community groups and projects, including the Spanish and Latin American Club and Wellington Access Radio.

Career Goal

I have recently moved to Timaru and am currently looking for a meaningful role in which I can apply my skills, continue developing them and gain new ones.

VOLUNTEER WORK

Club Latino

I joined the Spanish and Latin American Club Wellington Inc as a member in 2006. Since then I have been engaged in different roles, such as committee member, public relations officer, vice-president and president of the club. This year my mission is the maintenance of the club's website and social media.

Qué Onda

Radio Qué Onda is a live weekly Spanish-language radio show that broadcasts via Wellington Access Radio. The programme seeks to communicate, support and diffuse experiences and activities of and for Spaniards and Latin Americans living in Wellington. It also seeks to be a bridge between the Hispanic and the wider Wellington community. My main roles at Qué Onda are production, social media administrator and from time to time I asist as an announcer.

Oye Latino

This Spanish-language radio show began as Voz Latinoamericana in 2005 and then changed to Oye Latino, a radio show delivered in Spanglish about Latin American issues. I had the pleasure of working on the production of the show from its very beginning until its last show in 2017.
